GUIDED READING FREEBIES

It's always helpful to feel organized prior to the start of a guided reading group. One way to do that is to have a binder ready to go with running records, observation sheets for reading behaviors and notes to send home to parents.

All you need to do:

*Print out pages 3-7.

*Put the Running Records Cover in the front of your running record binder. Then put copies of your blank running records within the binder. Having a separate tab for each student is often helpful!

*Make copies of the observation sheet that you plan on using. The first one is for use with multiple students while the second one is meant for one page per student. These are great to keep in the binder so you can quickly jot down notes about a student while observing their reading behaviors.

*Make copies of the notes to send home. Making a big deal when sending one of these home with a reader always makes the student feel extra special! Send them home as often as you like to recognize each reader's accomplishments. These are great to keep at the front of your binder or nearby to easily grab and write during guided reading groups.

enjoy! Aylin
